The parent guide to the Kansas Special Education Process Handbook was written by the Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE). It is a start for learning about special education requirements. How the parent guide is structured:

1. describes the unique educational needs of the child and how those needs will be met; and
2. is developed, reviewed, and revised as required.

Related Services: Related services are developmental, corrective, and supportive services. These are services needed to assist a child with an exceptionality to benefit from special education. Special Education: Special education is specially designed instruction, at no cost to the parents, to meet the unique needs of a child with an exceptionality. Special education law is not easy to decipher, with several regulations that govern special education services for disabled students. In this article, learn about the core components of the laws, rights, and individual education plans that can help create the best public school environment for your child.

If you have a child with special needs, you are no doubt familiar with many of the services and accommodations provided to them by their school. You may also have a clear understanding of some of the laws that guarantee your child the appropriate support services in an educational setting. You are likely also familiar with the time, energy and red tape required to obtain services for your child. Special-needs schools in the Dallas area vary in size and educational philosophy. All are co-ed. All accept children from across the area. Many parents of developmentally delayed children learn that, ultimately, the greatest gift a parent can give his child may be love and a lifetime of happiness with himself. It's a lesson Notre Dame bestows on them as well as its students. Theresa M. Francis, principal; 2018 Allen St., Dallas, 214-720-3911. Parent participation in the special education decision-making process is vitally important. The most important thing parents can do is ensure they are involved with and take an active role as a member of the Individual Education Program (IEP) team that determines a student's path. Parents are the only adults in the educational process who have been and will continue to be deeply involved throughout the child's school career; and while they may not be educators themselves, they bring their years of experience in other professions and aspects of life to the process. What Special Education Teachers Don't Tell You.

Parents Know Their Children Best. Hopefully, you will not need to refer back to any of these records, but if the need arises, you will have them in black and white.
