Truth has been a topic of discussion in its own right for thousands of years. Instead, this essay will concentrate on the main themes in the study of truth in the contemporary philosophical literature. It will attempt to survey the key problems and theories of current interest, and show how they relate to one-another. A number of other entries investigate many of these topics in greater depth. There are a number of book-length surveys of the topics discussed here, including Burgess and Burgess (2011), Kirkham (1992), and KÃ¶vve (2003). Also, a number of the topics discussed here, and many further ones, are surveyed at more length in papers in Glanzberg (2018).
